

Rome's Geography

THE FOUNDING OF ROME

According to legend, Rome was founded by _____ & _____ in 753 BC.

Romulus kills his brother Remus and names _____ after himself.

Rome eventually became one of the greatest civilizations of the Ancient world.

They _____ many areas in which we learned about already.

ROME'S GEOGRAPHY

There are several _____ that flow out of Italy's mountains.

Rome started as a small town on the _____ River.

Its central _____ & good climate were important factors in its success & growth.

There were few _____ for trade. So many times they traded with each other.

_____, where Rome was built, is a _____ in Southern Europe.

It looks like a high-heeled boot sticking out into the Mediterranean Sea.

Ready to kick the nearby island of _____.

There are _____ major Mountain Ranges in Italy.

- To the North there are the _____. Europe's highest mountain range.
- The _____ mountains run the length of the peninsula.

This made it hard to travel from one side to the other. But the mountains are less _____ than Greece.

Also, some of the mountains are _____ like Mt. Vesuvius. These eruptions could _____ Roman towns.

Since the Apennines Mountains run through the peninsula much of Italy is not _____.

Where there are not mountains there are _____. Rome was built on _____ hills.

Rome like other Ancient cities sat atop hills. Romulus founded Rome on top of _____ Hill. There are 7 major hills in Rome.

Rome has warm, dry _____ & mild rainy _____.

Its _____ allows for them to grow a variety of crops. Like Citrus Fruits, Grapes, & Olives

This _____ lead to Rome's success.